he organ, entertained the vast audience until the time appointed for the commencement of the service, namely, half-past seven. The platform as tastefully decorated with flowers, the Mount Onvet stand was filled with plants of rich auamnal unts. About twenty minutes past seven o'clock Mr. Beecher entered by the little door at was pushed aside, and then was seen the familiar lace of the Plymouth pastor. The audience applauded vigorously and ladies rose in their places waving their handkerchiels, apparently with great delight. Mr. Beecher appeared not to notice any of these demonstrations, and taking a little hymn-book from the little table, proceeded in his usual manner to turn over the leaves for the selection of a hymn. The choir sung, apparently imprompta, manner to turn over the leaves for the selection of a hymn. The choir sung, apparently impromptu, Praise Got from whom all blessings flow. to the tune of "Old Hundred," the congregation rising and joining in with earnestness and vigor. This was followed by a solo, "O, rest in the Lord," by Miss Dumphy, the leading contraite of the choir. Mr. Beecher then advanced to the front of the platform, byinn book in hand. There was a hushed attention when it was found that, instead of giving out the number of the hymn, he was about to say something.

Mr. Beecher said:—"I could have wished on my return from my summer vacation to have met my people in the lecture room, that being our usual custom, but I recognize the reasons that have made it impossible for us to assemble there to-night. But just as far as it is possible let us imagine that we are meeting as usual in familiar Christian brotherhood. We have struggled together in the great battle of lie; we are come together for God's honor, not to gaze upon each other, but to worship, to hold sweet vibrated for nearly thirty years; for it is the evening of the 3d of October. Twenty-seven years ago I took the pastoral charge of this church and society. It is a fit anniversary of our first autumnal meeting, and in the beginning of this meeting let that one name which is forever above every other name be the only one asserted, the one thought of all and the only one. His presence will then diffuse a benediction around this great congregation." Mr. Beecher then announced the 660th bymn, commencing:—

When I survey the wondrous cross. reading it with evident feeling from the first line to the last. Mr. Beecher then led the great con-gregation in prayer, the leading thoughts of which were as follows:—

were as follows:—

The PRAYER.

Thou ever biessed God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, we render Thee thanks for all the mercies vonchsaled to us through Him; for His words, for the knowledge of the riches of His love, for His life, for all that we have derived from His life, from His dying, from His life that has gone up into heavenly places; for His leading of souls through darkness to light, from trouble and sorrow and sname to glery. Thou art our life, our light! Shed down upon us the bright inthences of that life, and kindle a hope of Christ Jesus, our Lord, in every heart, More are they who are for us than those who are against us, since Thou hast given to the dearnest More are they who are for us than those who are against us, since Thou hast given to the carnest of Thy Spirit. O, God! teach how more and more to glorily Thy name. Draw hear to all who are struggling with their price, and are cast down and wearled by the inequal conflict. Draw hear to all that are struggling with inbred sins and passions. Help them to learn truth, and may help learn to stand in the circle where Thou art. May they be able to overcome all and walk among men in all sweetness and purity. Make us to feel, not that the things that are seen are without value, but that they are of great value. Grant we may know how to adorn line. Gift us with the peace of God, with the presence of divine truth and love, with the peace of God that passeth all understanding.

the following is an outline:

BROTHER RAYMOND'S PRAYER.
Oh, God, we sanctily Thy mame for all thy mercles;
we thank Thee for all our prosperity as well as for all the sofrows that have sprang up in our midst, for behind every rown Thou hast permitted us to see Thy smiling more. Thy finger has pointed the way, and we thank Thee for the checkered lot with which Thou hast moulded and fashioned us.
Now, when we are assembled here on so solemn and touching an occasion, we ask fhee only this,
that Thou with meet is here, where Thou hast so Now, when we are assembled here on so solemn and touching an occasion, we ask free only this, that Thou wit meet to here, where Thou hast so many times been with us, where our nearts have melted together under the sweet songs of Zion. Oh. God, Thou hast never yet hidden Thy face away from us, though we have forgotten Thee, and now we pray that Thou will still be with us. We need Thy presence and help, and we pray that Thou will come to us, how that we once more find ourselves in our accustoms channel of labor. We have not been guilty of transerring the glory of the giver to the instrument, through which it is bestowed, for Thou hast been our strength, and to Thee shall all the glory be given. We know we are out instruments in Thy hands. On, God! may our dear pastor be strengthened. We thank Thee for the measure of strength Thou hast bestowed upon him. We pray Thee to bless him. And now, after Thou hast caused us to pass through the sea, let us come forth as with cymbals, and will Thou crown our feetbe efforts with such prosperity as fhou seest fit. We commend to Thy care this people and church that ye peace and prosperity rest within these wall at to Thy name, Father, Son and Spirit, be go everlasting. Amen.

After this prayer the 610th hymn was commending:—

Plymouth Association Meeting. After the prayer meeting the Plymouth Associavery handsomely decorated with flowers and banners. The platform was one huge pyramid of plants and flowers of all kinds and hues, and in the centre of the room was another not so large, while all round the room the piliars were twined with vines, and each space between filled with a hanging basket of blooming flowers. A large oil painting of Mr. Beecher hung at one end of the room, surrounded with a mass of green on white cloth. The room was densely thronged; all were waiking round and greeting their friends in the most social manner possible.

Mr. Beecher's entrance was hailed with hearty applanse, and immediately after his entrance Miss Lazar sting "Home, Sweet Home," after which Mr. Moses Beach took the platform and said, "Perhaps I should have been on the platform to inform the association what we are going to do. We have sung 'Home, Sweet Home.' Now, if you will make yourselves at home, or let Mr. Beecher circulate among you, and not stop him, that is what we want you to do.' Mr. Beecher, with Mr. Halliday to guard him and see that no one shook hands too long, then passed round the room shaking hands and speaking to every one in his way.

Notwithstanding Mr. Halliday's precaution he had to take the stand and say:—'Mr. Beecher wants his hand to preach with on Sunday. I see some of you loks grip it as though it were the list time you ever would."

While the business of shaking hands was going on "Auld Lang Syne" was sung, after which Mr. Hill "The Marseilaise" and Mrs. John Hutchinson sing "The Laat Rose of Summer." Mr. Beecher made his east very quietly, and after his departure the rest departed gradually. of green on white cloth. The room was densely

Commodore Melanethon B. Woolsey,

Commodore Melancthon B. Woolsey died yesterday in the city of Pensacola, Fia., at the age of fifty-six years. He was born in New York in the year 1818, and was appointed a midsalpman in the United States Navy July 24, 1832. He was at once ordered to the coast of Brazil, where he served until 1834 in the frigate United States. He was then put on shore duty for nearly ten years, after which he was ordered to the Mediterranean squadron, where he served from 1836 . to 1839. sent to do duty on the schoolship Pailadelphia, where he remained until 1840. On July 16 of that year he was raised to the rank of passed midshipman and once more ordered to the coast of shipman and once more ordered to the coast of Brazil, were he served, including cruises, until 1844, in the old frigate Delaware. From 1844 to 1847 he was attached to different navy yards, and on July 16 of the latter year was raised to the rank of heutenant and ordered on board of the storeship Relief, then fitting out to join the South Pacific squadron. In her he served until nearly the latter part of the year 1850, when he was transserred to the brig Perry and sent to the coast of Africa. Here he remained until 1854, the monotony of the service being broken occasionally by short cruises. At the termination of this duty he was put on waiting orders and remained idle until 1886, when he was ordered on board the receiving ship New York, where he remained till 1861. At this time the war for the Union began to assume formidable snape, and Lieutenaut Woolsey was put in command of the klien, a rerryboat that was fitted up with guins and intended to be used in the Southern rivers. After cruising idly till the beginning of 1862 he succeeded in engaging the rebeits at Wilper Creek on May 30. The enemy numbered about 490 men, and they commanded the battery at what was afterward known as Fort Pemberton. The enemy were repuised with a heavy loss. Lieutenaut Woolsey's next exploit was at Secession-ville, the action taking piace on June 1, 1862, when he succeeded in completely dislodging the enemy, atthough they brought to bear a powerful battery. On June 3 of the same year he short cruises. At the termination of this duty he the enemy, aithough they brought to bear a powerful battery. On June 3 of the same year he acted in concert with the army at James Island, and succeeded in routing a large revei orce. July 16, 1862, he was commissioned and put in command of the steamer Princess and ordered to join the Western Gulf blockading squadron, and it was while on duly here that he assisted in the defence of bonaldson-ville and Fort Sutier, when attacked by 3,000 rebels, under the leadership of Generals Green and Dick Taylor. On July 26, 1866, Commander Woolsey was commissioned a captain and ordered to the Naval Observatory at Washington, where he remained until 1865, when he was ordered to the command of the steam sloop Pawnee and sent to join the South Atlantic squadron. Servto the command of the steam sloop Pawnee and sent to join the South Atlantic squadron. Serving on this vessel till 1869 be was made a commodore and placed in full command of that department, noishing his pennant on the flagship Guerriere. Later he was detached from active sea service and took command of the Pensacoia Navy Yard, where, as already stated, he breathed his last on Friday, October 2. It is rather a coincidence that the navy yard at which he died was established by his father. Commodore Woolsey, aitnough not a brilliant officer, was a most excellent one, a true man and a night-toned gentleman. Officers and men were devotedly attached to him, and his death leaves a serious void in American naval circles.

From St. John, N. B., we are informed, under date of the 30th urt., of the sudden death of W. H. Needham, a well-known citizen of that place. was born in Frederickton in the year 1811. He was admitted an attorney in 1832, and called to the par in 1834. Mr. Needham engaged in practice in Woodstock, St. John and Fredericton, but for many years past he resided in the latter city. many years past he resided in the inter city. While in St. John he was a member of the Common Council, and succeeded in reforming some abuses which existed at that time. He was several times in the House of Assembly, but had been some years out of public life when he was elected for york during the Confederation campaign of 1865 on the anti-Confederate ticket. He was defeated with the rest of his party at the general election in 1865, but in 1867, when Judge Fisher's election to the commons caused a vacancy in the repreto the commons caused a vacancy in the representation of york, Mr. Neednam again became a candid to and was elected. His bitterness against the unit, with Canada, which found expression in many spaces while in the House, caused his defeat at the veneral election in 1879, and he was again defeated at the last general election, this year.

Liverpoot, Oct 1—Bark Presto (Br), Rogers, from London for New York, has put back to Queenstown in a leaky condition.

don for New York, has put back to Queenstown in a leaky condition.

Porrswouth, NH, Sept 30—Schr Mary E Caswell started for the Shoals Tuesday forenoon, the wind being light and the tide on the flood at the time. Finding the tide taking the vessel rapidly toward Portsmouth bridge, and having no ground tackle save a smail grapple, the skipper ran a line to schr Annie Todd, lying at Dover Raliroad wharf, but the line was cast of by the crew of the latter vessel, and the former went helplessly up with the tide against the bridge, which she struck with great force, broadside on, her bowsprit being carried away and her foremast unstepped by the shock, and her huil being shaken up enough to make her leak treely.

Savannah, Sept 29—On Saturday last, while the sch Mary C Braishaw was being reinvenated in her inner works, the varnish took fire, communicating with the woodwork of the vessel, and for a time threakened a serious conflagration. The prompthess of the crew, aided by Captain Merchant, of sch Hattie N Gove, saved her with sight damage.
